

Can you tell us a little about your background and what led you to join Orifarm CTS?

I attended university and received my degree in pharmacy. I then worked in community pharmacy in various companies and positions before deciding that I wanted a change in my career. I was presented the opportunity to apply for the account manager role at Orifarm CTS and I had never worked in any sector of clinical trials but it sounded really interesting to me and an area which I could develop. I remember speaking to the Orifarm CTS leadership at the time and I was keen to be a part of it.

What inspired you to pursue a career in Clinical Trial Supplies?

I was keen to be able to still use my knowledge as a pharmacist but also grow in a new space and Clinical Trial Supplies provided me with this opportunity. I hadn't had a lot of exposure to Clinical Trial Supplies so when the opportunity came up I was intrigued by Clinical Trial Supplies.

What are some of the key experiences in your career that have shaped you professionally?

I have been very fortunate to work with a lot of great colleagues with a diverse skillset. They have been able to share their knowledge with me and help me develop within the industry. One thing I learnt very quickly was to absorb as much as I can from these colleagues.

What are the most rewarding aspects of your job?

Putting patients and the centre of everything we do. With my background, helping patients within the community was a real driver for becoming a pharmacist and the fact that I am still able to that in a different way makes my job very rewarding.

What skills do you find most crucial in your role?

Being organised and paying attention to details! A lot of the time, this job can get very busy and having these skills allows me to focus and prioritise.

What do you enjoy most about working with your team?

The people. I work in a great team here in the UK but also the colleagues I work with in other countries. They make coming into work a lot easier.

What advice would you give to someone looking to pursue a career in your field?

Find people already working in the industry and ask questions. Understand the landscape of Clinical Trials and try get some experience shadowing or attending event.

What's a fun fact about you that people might not know?

I enjoy building Lego models. I am in the middle of building the Millenium Falcon from Star Wars. I haven't had much time to build it recently so I need to get back to it!
